SITUATION SUMMARY

2017 Statewide January Winter Storms

An atmospheric river, a narrow corridor of concentrated moisture, will take aim at California this weekend with heavy precipitation, high snow levels and soils that are already saturated from recent storms. The storm will tape off 01/09/17. Additional storms are possible 01/10/17 into the week ahead. The majority of the precipitation will fall as rain in the mountainous areas as snow levels rise above 8,000 feet.

- This is forecast to be some of the more significant flooding seen in the past decade. Areas may flood that haven't seen impacts for several years. Additional storms are possible Tuesday into the following weekend. Keep in mind that flooding will take several days to recede in some areas after the rain stops.

Deployments

- 1 Cal OES Representative has deployed to Department of Water Resource's (DWR) Flood Operations Center (FOC).

Activations

- The State Operations Center (SOC) is activated at Level 3.

State/Federal Agency Preparatory Activities

Cal OES Law Branch

- Cal OES Law Branch Assistant Chiefs are working with their Regional Mutual Aid Coordinators (RMACS) and each County Sheriff's department to gain situational awareness and monitor activity throughout the regions. Regular check-ins with RMACs will be conducted to monitor the impacts from the storms. Assistant Chiefs are participating in numerous conference calls Statewide to share and gain situational awareness.

State Parks

- California State Parks has notified their Public Safety Superintendents in all Districts advising them to take precautions for storm preparation, as well as staffing accordingly and advising park visitors via typical communication methods.

California Nevada River Forecast Center

- The California Nevada River Forecast Center (CNRFC) will extend staffing coverage overnight through 01/11/17 and will issue four hydrologic forecasts per day. These briefings are scheduled daily at 1000 hours through mid-week.

Department of Water Resources

- The Department of Water Resources (DWR) Flood Operations Center (FOC) is activated with 24-hour operations, utilizing a 12-hour operational period. They continue to participate in conference calls with Cal OES and local agencies.
  - DWR staff were pre-positioned in the Merced area to support local agencies in the San Joaquin Valley.
  - DWR advises there are no requests for assistance at this time.
  - Updates will follow if they become necessary.

SITUATION SUMMARY

2017 Statewide January Winter Storms

Cal OES Coastal Region

River Forecast - The following rivers are forecast to meet or exceed Flood stage through Monday:

Humboldt County:

- Mad River at Arcata is forecast to crest at 22.9 feet the morning of 01/10/17.
  - Potential Impacts: Significant flooding of portions of Mad River Beach Road and adjacent farm lands is likely. May cause water to flow across roads to Tyee City. High tides and strong onshore winds will aggravate flood impacts.
- Eel River at Fernbridge is forecast to crest at 23.4 feet the morning of 01/11/17.
  - Potential Impacts: The western half of the Eel Delta may be completely flooded, especially if at or above this level for an extended period of time. This include areas northwest of Loleta, Cannibal Island Road. A Special Action Advisory is being issued to all owners of livestock in low-lying areas of the Eel Delta. These animals are at risk due to rising river levels, and appropriate action should be considered.
- Van Duzen River at Bridgeville is forecast to crest at 18.8 feet the evening of 01/10/17.
  - Potential Impacts: Flooding of Highway 36 near Grizzly Creek State Park and along River Bar Road in the Starvation Flats area. Water level at the State Park reaches the parking lot.

Mendocino County:

- Navarro River at Navarro is forecast to crest at 33.8 feet the morning of 01/11/17.
  - Potential Impacts: Significant flooding over the south bank approximately 1 mile east of Highway 1, and damage to property including 6 homes is possible. Expect closure of Highway 128. Motorists should use alternative routes.
- Russian River at Hopland is forecast to crest at 26.7 feet the evening of 01/10/17.
  - Potential Impacts: Widespread major flooding. At the forecast level, over 500 homes and farm buildings were damaged on December 22, 1955. 6300 acres of land were inundated by flood waters. All persons in the area are urged to move to high ground and take appropriate action to protect life and property.

Sonoma County:

- Russian River at Guerneville is forecast to crest at 35.6 feet the evening of 01/11/17.
  - Potential Impacts: Moderate flooding is forecast along the lower Russian River. Numerous businesses and residences in the lowest sections of towns within the reach are expected to flood. Mill, lower 4th and 5th Street in Guerneville are forecast to flood. Redwood Drive in Northwood is forecast to flood.

WEATHER OF CONCERN

Weather of Concern

- The active weather pattern will continue on Monday with valley rain showers and mountain snow. Even though precipitation will be much lighter on Monday, many rivers will continue to rise as the water that fell on Sunday moves down the Sierra. Another wet system looks to move into Northern California on Tuesday which could cause more flooding problems and impact mountain travel.
- A significant amount of snow will be coming to Northern California's mountains Tuesday through Wednesday. Several feet of snow will be possible over the course of 3 days.
- Strong southerly winds are expected with Tuesday's storm. Downed trees, tree branches, and power outages will be possible, which could cause moderate-sized power outages.

Key Points

- Moderate to heavy rainfall continuing today with snow levels starting to lower. A second weather system will impact the state starting late tonight through Tuesday with lower snow levels. Flooding occurring, or expected, on several levels today and lasting through mid-week.
- Many mainstem rivers starting to reach flood stage today. Coastal and Valley locations will have a secondary peak Tuesday into Wednesday before falling below flood stage. East side of Sierra, lower snow levels will greatly reduce the threat of flooding.
- All rivers are expected to fall below flood stage by Wednesday. Drier weather is expected the latter half of the week.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION

NORTHERN CALIFORNIA

More wet weather will be over the region for the next 3 days. There will be more periods of heavy precipitation develop later tonight and Tuesday in particular. This will continue the flooding potential that's already in place. Strong southerly winds will develop overnight into Tuesday with many areas seeing speeds of 10-25 mph with gusts of 30-45 mph common, and locally stronger gusts probable. A break in the weather is expected to develop late Wednesday and last into the weekend before more wet weather arrives next week. Snow levels over the next few days will be variable, but mostly from 3000-4000 feet in the north and 5000-6000 feet in the south. Significant amounts of mountain snow accumulation are expected again/will continue. With the strong winds expected soon, the possibility of trees blowing over or large limbs snapping off will also continue. Travel through the mountains will become difficult in many areas as well through mid-week. Drier weather is expected Thursday and Friday in all areas, Saturday may see some light showers in some areas, and the NW portion of the region will probably see precipitation return later Sunday into next Monday. Another major winter storm will possibly arrive about the middle of next week.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA

One storm will be exiting the region today, but two more storms will bring periods of rain through Thursday evening. Scattered showers will be possible between storms. Most foothill and mountain locations across Central California will receive an additional 4 to 8 inches of rainfall through Thursday, while most coastal and valley locations receive an additional 1 and 4 inches of rainfall. Most foothill and mountain locations across Southern California will receive 2 to 4 inches of additional rainfall through Thursday, while most coastal and valley locations receive an additional 1 to 2 inches. The snow level will be between 7,000 and 8,000 feet through Tuesday and then drop to 5,000 to 6,000 feet Wednesday and Thursday. Strong south to west winds will continue to surface across the mountain ridges and desert passes through Thursday morning. Maximum temperatures will be below normal through Thursday, with most mountain locations in the upper 30s and 40s and most valley locations in the 50s to low 60s. A ridge of high pressure will build into California from the Pacific Ocean Friday through this weekend bringing a warming and drying trend to the region. North to northeast winds of 15 to 30 mph with gusts to 50 mph will surface across the mountains and below the canyons and passes of Southern California Friday morning through Sunday morning.
